1874 23rd Nov. 1874. 10/11
Dear Sir,
I have the pleasure to inform you that the same has been received and is now in the hands of the proper authorities for their consideration.
I am, Sir, very respectfully, Your obedient servant,

The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the train was the smell of fresh air. It was a relief after being in the city for so long. I walked down the street
 and saw people everywhere. They were all looking at me with curiosity. I felt like I was the center of attention.
 I was a little nervous but I tried to smile. I wanted to make a good impression. I walked for a while and then I saw a sign that said
 "Welcome to the City". I felt like I had reached my destination.
 I was happy to be here. I was going to start a new life. I was going to be a part of this city.
 I was going to make a difference.
 I was going to
 be a success.
 be a star.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a letter or a page from a manuscript. The text is written in a fluid, connected style characteristic of 17th or 18th-century handwriting. The ink is dark, and the paper shows signs of age and wear, including some staining and a slightly irregular edge. The text is arranged in several lines, with some words appearing to be underlined or written in a slightly larger hand than others. The overall impression is one of a personal or official communication from a past era.

12. The first of these is the fact that the human mind is not a blank slate. It is filled with ideas and feelings from the moment of birth.
The second is the fact that the mind is not a passive receptor of information. It is an active agent in the process of learning. It selects what to learn and how to learn it. It is this active role of the mind that makes education possible. It is the teacher's task to guide the mind in its search for knowledge and to help it to develop its own ideas and feelings.
The third is the fact that the mind is not a single entity. It is made up of many different parts, each with its own functions.
The fourth is the fact that the mind is not a fixed entity. It is constantly changing and growing.
The fifth is the fact that the mind is not a private entity. It is a social entity. It is shaped by the people we live with and the culture we live in.
The sixth is the fact that the mind is not a purely rational entity. It is also emotional. It is the emotions that give the mind its power and its direction.

 question of the nature of the evidence which is presented to the jury in the case of a witness who has been examined and cross-examined by the parties. The question is whether the evidence is to be taken as the evidence of the witness, or whether it is to be taken as the evidence of the jury.
 The answer to this question is that the
 witness, and the jury is to be allowed to draw such inferences
 as they think proper from the evidence so presented.

I have been thinking of you
